

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A thin film transistor liquid crystal display is designed such that TFTs for driving green pixels are formed in the blue pixel regions. This improves the overall brightness of the liquid crystal display based on the human view-sensitive characteristics.